The term "Tiers" in Blood Bowl is used to refer to the different winning abilities of the different races in Blood Bowl. In the original 3rd Edition rules, there was the Designer's Note that said there are some races that are more challenging, and since then this has been more finely tuned as the performance of the different races has been observed and measured.

NAF World Headquarters :: Blood Bowl - member.thenaf.net

@voodoomike said in Chaos Pact and Khorn DLC ?. The NAF is not the arbiter of what is or is not official in Blood Bowl - that'd be Games Workshop, the people who actually produce the game. The NAF is an unofficial organization of players that host tournaments and collect result data related to their dues-paying members.

Chaos Pact and Khorn DLC - Focus Forums

Chaos Pact teams are a new addition to Bloodbowl, although they were inspired by the famous "Chaos All Stars", a team made famous in the Bloodbowl flavor text. Chaos Pact Teams are comprised of different, traditionally "Evil" races, including Dark Elves, Goblins, Skaven, and Chaos Marauders (Norse worshippers of Chaos).

It is interesting with the status of the different teams. Until 2016 we had 21 official rosters with NAF recognising Underworld, Chaos pact and Slann teams that have been suggested by the game designers but as there was no official GW release of the game since then they were unofficial still available in all NAF tournaments.
