Mr Pereira recalls that in the early days, a firefighter's badge of honour was the number of fires he'd fought. Over time, this form of recognition came to an end as the number of fires decreased due to better fire prevention methods and public education.

TRIAL BY FIRE

Trial By Fire gives the spotlight to these people who put their lives on the line to stop the spread of the Thomas Fire. Sitting down with these inmates and hearing their stories, it made me recognize that despite their current circumstances, they are truly firefighters

Within the Detroit Fire Department, trainees are called "trial men;" in other words they are being "tried," or given a try, to see if they are of any worth, before being accepted as firefighters. Speaking of trial men, I recall this past DFD Field Day, where they were recruited to do grunt work such as setup and teardown of tables & chairs, and other physical work.
